FAIR MANAGERS HELPLESS.

77 Hester, at Hester, Loss $175 in a Race Show—Sweatboards, Boule, and Race Running Wide Open.

Alphie, gamblers and swindlers have been the Fair Grounds at White Plains, where the Westchester Agricultural Association is giving its annual exhibition. These features of the fair are new, but the gamblers have never been there in such numbers as at present. They are extremely bold, and their trade wherever it suits their purposes. Yesterday a World reporter saw six sweatboard games in operation on the grand stand, and a dozen more in the stables. The big wheel of fortune game is being played with a new wrinkle. The operator has a magnet concealed under the wheel, and the arrow stops where it will hit the most good. This operator is lying in about all the spare cash in Westchester County youths have in their pockets. Yesterday afternoon Henry Heuber, of Rock, who was backing the sweatboard game in a side show run by E. B. Bodine, was robbed of $175. Heuber has been losing steadily. He finally became angry and pulled out a roll of bills offered to bet the operators $50 that he could pick the pea from beneath the wheel. The slight of the money was too much for the gamblers, and they grabbed him and ran. Heuber set up a howl and a crowd started in pursuit. They followed the track and through the grounds where they were caught. They held their names as Clarke and Hanrahan. They were held for trial by a local magistrate. Heuber's tent, where the robbery took place, is only a short distance from the grand stand. He is supposed to run a variety show. The only performer he has is a woman who warbles "Sweet Home" at intervals. She wears just thing enough to avoid arrest. The rest of the tent is given up to gambling purposes. There are craps, roulette wheels and a faro table, surrounded by a black curtain. Sweathboards are being run all over the fair grounds. The operators carry boards under their vests. When a favorable opportunity offers the boards are pulled out and the game commenced. There were two fights in the cattle pen yesterday. In one the operator was pinned out and the game commenced. TWO DISAPPEAR QUEERLY.

Young William R. Read and His Pretty Sister-in-Law, Alice Bodie, Vanish from Scarsdale, N. Y.

The little hamlet of Scarsdale, N. Y., is in a fever heat of excitement caused by the disappearance last night of William R. Read and his sister-in-law, Alice Bodie. Read is well known, not only in Scarsdale and New Rochelle, where he formerly lived, but in Fordham, where he was a coal merchant, and in White Plains, where he was raised and where his father, John Read, is a wealthy real estate owner.

Young Read is about thirty years old and very popular. His father established him in the coal and feed business at Fordham. The firm name was William R. Read & Co., the father being the company. The venture prospered and the profits were divided into his brother's share. The elder Read was called upon for money for this, that and the other emergency, and he finally decided to investigate the cause of the change in the tide at the coal yard. The result, it is said, of this investigation was the closing of the business and the sale of several fast horses.

About six years ago young Read met Miss Clara Bodie, one of the four handsome daughters of John Bodie, a prosperous butcher of Upper New Rochelle. The young couple were married. Mr. Bodie took his son-in-law into his business and together they conducted it until a year ago, when Bodie sold his market and purchased the farm of George Ferris, a cider manufacturer, at Scarsdale.

Here the family moved, and Papa Read, who was backing the sweatboard game in a side show run by E. B. Bodine, was robbed of $175. Heuber has been losing steadily. He finally became angry and pulled out a roll of bills offered to bet the operators $50 that he could pick the pea from beneath the wheel. The slight of the money was too much for the gamblers, and they grabbed him and ran. Heuber set up a howl and a crowd started in pursuit.
